Hi-max

There is a universal appeal for any machine that looks as though it has been designed for the job. In an instant it is apparent Hi-Max will do the job.

The challenges of being sufficiently robust to handle vehicles the like of modern Range Rover and yet possessing the technical ability to load low sports cars without damage are not insignificant. And yet in reality the way in which the Hi-max solution works is elegantly simple and unique.

The centre piece of the design is within the main chassis sections. An intricate, stressed fabrication of hi-strength steels and pressings form a tough backbone. It incorporates all important design details that protect cars, operators and other road users.

Brian James Trailers have created this trailer to appeal to professionals as a working tool. It is through many years in industry and commerce plus our absolute customer commitment that we understand the importance of details so often overlooked.

Hi-max, the sportscar transporter displays a strong commitment to protecting delicate and expensive alloy wheels with a unique 'taper' chassis design. Only the tyre wall is able to make contact with the chassis if a driver gets too close.

180-2000 with optional centre deck and manual fully adjustable winch

Hi-max, the Heavy Duty transporter demonstrates that with a 2,780kg maximum load capacity even the worlds heaviest mass produced cars are easily within its capabilities. With this weight onboard the very low centre of gravity is important for towing safety.
